

Health intelligence for everyday practice

A one day foundation level training course

Thursday 25th October 2018, 10.00-16.00

Durham County Council, County Hall, Durham DH1 5UL

(County Hall is a 10 minute walk from Durham station on the East coast main line)

This training course is being delivered by the Local Knowledge and Intelligence Service for the North East, within Public Health England. It is aimed at anyone involved in population health and health improvement who is seeking a basic introduction to key concepts in health intelligence. It would be of benefit to people whose job or voluntary role includes a wider public health remit. Examples are policy officers, commissioners, environmental health officers, housing officers, planners and voluntary sector organisation staff. It is also suitable for less-experienced public health practitioners and public health intelligence specialists.

The day is broken down separate sections covering:

1. Introduction to health intelligence
2. Using health intelligence to understand your population: an interactive approach using Fingertips
3. Understanding a health issue: interpreting and acting on health intelligence
4. A guided tour of a Fingertips profile: Public Health Outcomes Framework
5. Exploring Health Profiles
6. Self-directed exercises: tobacco, obesity or alcohol
7. Linking intelligence with evidence of what works: Health Matters
8. Conclusions, next steps and evaluation of the day

Participants will be asked to complete two 20 minute e-learning modules before attending the training day. They will also be asked to bring along a laptop with an internet browser on the day, to allow access to health intelligence websites. A wifi connection will be available.

Timetable: arrive 09.30-10.00, tea/coffee served, morning session 10.00-12.30, afternoon session 13.15-16.00. Lunch is not provided but there is a café within County Hall where participants can purchase a light lunch.

There is no charge to attend this training course. To request a place on this course, please e-mail LKISNorthEast@phe.gov.uk.

Public Health England thanks Durham County Council for hosting the course.
